Alma Mater

O' here's to thee, dear mother true,
Thy ideals and thy dream,
That we may ever faithful be
In following the gleam!
O, how could we the distant far
Depart from all thy ways?
Thy daughters will all worthy be,
Throughout thy length of days!

All hail to thee, O mother fair,
Our happy second home,
Midst lofty skies of heavenly blue,
Thy stately walls and dome,
Reveal to us thy spirit true
The music of thy life;
May we with vision born of right,
Subdue ill-will and strife!

Now Alma Mater mother kind
The world voice ever calls,
And tho' our love for thee is deep,
Soon must we leave thy halls;
For there are those who always need
Thy truth and wisdom pure,
Stern duty calls—we hear and heed,
In filial love to thee.

We Stoop to Conquer

For Mr. Real—I will not study tonight; my card is on the bottom.

For Mr. Gittaf—I will memorize, "And they would not grow."

For Miss Rekcut—I will study the lesson, not going into detail, but learning the number of capital letters, commas, and semi-colons.

For Mr. Lleb—I will organize and make an outline.

For Mr. Lufhtiaf—I will study faithfully.

For Miss Sbbuts—I will go to the library and view the material.

For Miss Nodnol—I will not study my lessons to-night; class will be dismissed.

For Miss Zonum—I will not have a silly grin on my face.

For Miss Retej—I will not suffer from malnutrition.

For Mr. Regniarg—I will devote my life to organizing Vahispa pageants.

For Miss Wolrab—I will never give exercises in rhythm.

For Miss Drofub—I will clear the schools of hicks.

For Miss Yram—I will act the perfect lady.

For Miss Notlehs—I will never ask for special permission to go down town.

For Miss K. Duam Orrefailat—I will iron my package slip carefully before presenting.

For Mrs. Ldod—I will sleep until seven o'clock.

For Mrs. Nosimaj—I will eat the inside of rolls.

For Mrs. Yreep—I will not take food from the dining room.

"Her eyes like stars at twilight;

"This looks interesting," mused Miss Alumna, as she slowly turned the pages of the history of the Class of 1922. She adjusted her horn-rimmed specs and fell to reading the record of that illustrious class. This is what she read:

History of the Class of Nineteen-Twenty-Two

"They all looked alike, those poor scared little Juniors, as they clutched their bags and bundles when the conductor yelled "Farmville"; but they couldn't feel scared long when a jolly-faced girl wearing the Y.W.C.A. ribbon smiled into their eyes and grabbed and bustled them up the hill and into S.N.S. through a window, most likely into RoomJ—Room J, the initiation chamber for our new girls.

Those first few days seem hazy now, do they not? All a jumble of hundreds of new names, countless halls and millions of steps and unexpected corners. But at last the Juniors learned to find the Library without starting from the third floor and found the proper class room inside of fifteen minutes after class began.

After organizing with Christine Shields as President, the Class found itself engaged in all the school activities. From the first the Juniors were active in athletics. A large number proved to be natural-born hikers and—Oh, those basket ball players we found in our midst! We lost the game on Thanksgiving Day to the Seniors but we won the other two games, didn't we, girls? In the race for the Athletic cup the Juniors won in basket ball and in hiking but in the health they lost to the Seniors—and those Juniors were real clean and neat looking too.

When Field Day came Junior spirits were high but when the final activities were over we found ourselves about a sixteenth of an inch behind the Seniors. Old Twenty-Two's spirit never dies, though, so we took our defeat bravely.

When commencement came with all its hurry and flurry for the Seniors, we found plenty of work for willing Junior hands. Are Juniors supposed to feel unnecessary at Commencement? Well, we didn't—with paging Seniors, entertaining guests and decorating for all the final social functions we had our hands full. Always in the back of our minds was the thought—next year this time.

Though the vacation months had their full allotment from old Father Time, they sped away and it didn't seem long before the Juniors came back—Seniors. This good old class found itself together once more with a very small number absent. We soon organized and the Senior Class of 1922 fell to work. And there was so much to work for. With the Student Building Fund to help build up and all the school activities which loyal students enter and the Training School waiting to devour our time, we were "plenty busy."

School life seemed better to us than ever. Much had been done to improve the buildings and it wasn't long before the Tea Room opened its doors to us. We knew the Tea Room was to help to swell the fund for the Student Building, but who of us did not read at once the kindly motives of Miss Mary and Dr. Jarman?

Again as Seniors were entering Athletics with pep and many of our old basket ball standbys got on the Varsity Squad.

Time passes swiftly with Seniors. Many are our difficulties, but a difficulty overcome becomes a pleasure, so at last the time arrives when we find ourselves preparing for commencement. With these preparations our emotions are various. We begin to remember only the pleasant incidents of our past two years and the friends about us seem doubly dear. The busy days of many tasks fade in the background, and we can only remember that soon we are leaving and that when we come again our dear old places will be filled. So here's a toast to all of S.N.S. and a word of hearty cheer to those who follow us. May they catch the inspiration that this grand old institution gives—catch it and pass it on.

And the Class of Twenty-Two—in a sense we're breaking ranks, but not in spirit, are we? Let us not forget the bonds of two years forging, keeping ever before us the high ideals of our class, and striving to be worthy of our Alma Mater.

Miss Alumna closed the book and smiled, "A worthy class, a worthy class."

As she slowly slipped the volume to its place on the shelf, she murmured, "Queer, every class grows better, 1922—um- hum-m-m."

Class Poem

Thou, who dost dwell in distant, dreamed-of Paradise,
Thou, who with slow slipping fingers
And dreaming eyes,
Dost weave the Web of Life
Through which the tiny soul of each of us
Is woven, in and out:

We do not ask great gifts of Thee—
Large boons, as wealth or fame or power—
Or happiness.
'Tis only this—of all the vast, vain store
Of human prayers, a little thing indeed—
The chance to live!
Thou who dost dwell so far above,
So deep beneath this earthly place of ours,
Give heed, we pray—
Let us not be mere calm and inland pools,
Shallow, stagnantly serene and still,
Reflecting calm earth and calmer sky,
Calm year upon calm year.
Although we be but tiny drops
That toss unsatisfied,
Let us be as the sea—the vast, deep searching sea
Unwearied, seeking ever Thy shadow, Truth
That lies in earth and man;
A fruitless quest, perhaps, but one that brings
Within itself much joy and Thy rich smile.
Give us Thy pain—Thy love—Thy laughter,
That we may fashion mortal tears.
And unlock the doors of our souls.
We do not ask pale Piety
Or dull-eyed Peace.
But let us Live!
Fiercely, joyously, wholly—
As Thou dost live—
Until our flame is blown
Into the oblivion of Night
And we are gone.

This only do we ask of Thee
And go our way.

The Prophecy

I rubbed my eyes and slowly opened them. Yes, I was still on the train and was speeding on past beautiful fields, rose-tinted by the glorious sun now almost lost to view in a bank of rainbow clouds. I knew I must be nearing my destination, for nowhere except in Farmville had I ever seen Old Sol set in such royal splendor. Several people were bustling about with suitcases so I lost no time in getting on my hat and coat and employing the inevitable powder puff. By this time the train had lumbered up into the station and already crowds of people were leaving the train. I, probably the most excited of them all, pushed my way through the aisles and finally stepped aground. Of course I saw only strange people, not having been back for ten years, but I searched every face until I caught sight of my old school chum, Ida Paulette. She was hurrying toward me. How glad I was to see someone from the Old Normal! Of course I was all curiosity.

"Have many of the girls arrived?" I asked. "Are they really living up to their bargain?"

To explain the "bargain"—before leaving school in 1922 we had all agreed to meet in Farmville after ten years in the big world and tell our experiences. Everyone must be represented we had decided. Anyone not being able to be present must send some account of herself or the reunion would not be a success.

Ida assured me that already many girls had assembled at the New Prince Edward awaiting the midnight train that would bring the last of the members. I did not exactly understand what she meant by the New Prince Edward but did not question her because I had heard of the rapid growth of Farmville and was ready for surprises. The first one came when we boarded a High Street car and were joined by Rebekah Lipscomb. I don't know which was the more surprising—seeing Rebekah or the street car. Of course we talked old times again and that was half the fun. As I glanced from the window of the car I saw that the streets were lined with ever moving vehicles coming or going at the will of brass-buttoned policemen who commanded the cross streets. Most of the sights were unfamiliar to me, but Ida promised me a trip over the city before I should leave—a trip that I looked forward to with greatest interest.

It wasn't until the next day that I fully realized what was in store for me. I was very eager to see my old friends and the city that had undergone so many wonderful changes. Naturally my preference was to see the Old Normal which held for me so many pleasant memories. The bus drove up alongside of an enormous building and here Ida and I got out. I had never seen the building before, in fact I did not know what part of town I was in until turning the corner I read the sign, High Street. I could not believe my eyes when I saw the State Normal School standing in all the beauty of old and by it this handsome structure—the Student Building. On examining I found that the corner stone had been laid in 1922. Being deeply interested, I inquired after Dr. Jarman and the different members of the home department. Miss Mary, I learned, had given up her position to Tilly Waddell, who had as her assistant, Reba Johnson who was following up Miss Shelton's duties. I was also interested to learn that Helen Patton had succeeded Miss Spear as instructor in reading with stress laid on enunciation. Carolyn Cogbill and Lucy Cheshire were also on the faculty. I was not surprised that Julia Alexander was assistant to Miss Coulling and AnnaBelle Treakle to Miss Barlow.

The time went quickly by as we roamed from building to building and before I was nearly ready Ida said that we should go in order to be on time for the banquet which was to be held in the New Prince Edward where I would hear many more wonderful things. In the big banquet hall we were met by Sallie Mae Gray, Inice Agee and Christine Armstrong, all of whom had just returned from two years of settlement work in New York City. Around the room were groups of people discussing, it seemed, a common topic. It centered around two very heroic women who for five years had given up social life in behalf of bettering conditions in a barbarous part of Korea. The names I found to be Cecile Ward and Eleanor Webster. It is said that thru experimentation they found the victrola particularly quieting to the nerves as well as factoring in developing the aesthetic sense of the natives.

I was much interested in a story that Elizabeth Finch was telling about her experiences in a mountain kindergarten. It seemed that Elizabeth, Kitty Cole, Cleo Everette, Evelyn Speight, Nell McArdle, Elsie Bell and Mary Gray had been working for several years in this part of the country and had had many valuable experiences. I found that many more of my class mates had stayed with the teaching profession. There were Agnes Fulcher, Grace Ames, Mary Beazley, Sue Puckett and Sara Stubblefield who had been successful in rural work. There were others who I will admit surprised me a little, for although they were enrolled in Course I, I found that they were teaching in universities and collges. Lila Newsom was teaching at V. P. I., and Mary Burwell was trying hard to get a position at W. and L.

Eight o'clock found a merry group seated around the banquet table, each in turn relating her experiences. Rebecca Bunch reported that she and Virginia Weaver had opened an advanced school in dancing and under the supervision of Gladys Allen had made quite a success of it.

At this moment it was announced that we would be favored by a solo by one of our members. I looked and saw Kate Trent standing before me, her head lifted in song. I had never known about Kate's musical ability and I doubtless would not have believed it to be she except for the song she sang—"Work for the Night is Coming." After this selection we were entertained by Etta Belle Walker. Etta Belle, now famous, had accumulated quite a fortune. She had run the Victor Talking Machine Company out of business by setting up an establishment for herself and making all of her own records. She told us that she knew something about nearly all the absent classmates. In her travels she had either seen or heard of most of them. Lil Bristow had become a successful movie star. I was not surprised at this but it was hard to believe that Emily Calcott had started an evangelistic tour rivaling Billy Sunday. In her noted choir were Evelyn Barnes, Winnie Hines, Julia Asher, Ruby Goode and Edly Andrews. Emily is said to have gotten her training along this line in her addresses at class meetings.

As I looked around the table I missed the face of my old friend, Rena Luck. Luckey had not sent a report of herself but the faithful Etta Belle said that she had seen her not two weeks before and that she had developed a love for literature and had spent most of her time studying the literary works of the 18th Century including poetry ond prose, specializing in Carlyle's Essays.

Lavinia McCarthy and Bertha Spradlin told of their approaching stage debut in an extravaganza to be produced at a New York garden party. Jane Cobb, Hazel Carter, Mabel Neblette, Ashley Leckey and Marie Ricks told of their years of service in Congress. They attributed their ability to argue to the incidental training received in Mr. Lear's civics classes. Pauline Timberlake had recently become famous by publishing a book of poems which were said to have been the most valuable addition to literature in recent years.

Next we heard from Fannie Maynard who told us that with the help of Margaret West, Claudia Gilchrist, Lillian Travis, Marion Tucker, Lorena Wilcox and Mary Simmons, she had succeeded in setting up an up-to-date Grammar School at Brown's Church. Harriet Munoz told her intersting experiences as editor of one of Farmville's biggest dailies. Helen Craddock, Lula Daly, Loda and Myrtice Fitchette reported to have positions in various schools of the state. Ruth McKelway claimed that the educational system of America was all wrong and she was quietly working out a new system, independent of Montessori or any modern educator.

The next person to speak said that her report would be of a different nature. She had been appointed to read a list which was headed "Married and Happy." Under this head came Lelia Haden, Lillian Hayes, Amy Pannill, Mary Payne, Nannie Ramsey, Nettie McNulty, Mildred Griffin, Hope Drewry, Annie Gannaway and Gracie Davis.

This interesting report was followed by another. Dorothy Diehl explained to us how for years she and her faithful assistants, Gladys Gray, Dorothy Baltz and Margaret Giles had been advocating the adoption of a school uniform for the girls at S. N. S. and how after careful consideration they had finally designed a simple and appropriate dress resembling the Peter Tompkin suit,—all dresses used required to be eight inches from the floor.

Just before the banquet was over someone suggested that we give a vote of thanks to Elizabeth Thompson who had acted the part of caterer. It was explained that Liz had had much experience along this line and had taken Mrs. Jamison's place in charge of the school dining-room. Every one thought her most efficient due to her thorough course in nutrition and dietetics—but where was I? Trees—fences—sky—and I opened my eyes quickly to find no banquet hall but the same old chugging train. Maybe I had already passed Farmville! To use an expression of my old school days, "I was a wreck." I immediately donned my hat and coat and was about to ask my whereabouts when I was informed by the conductor who came through the coach shouting, "Crew. Crew." With a sigh of relief I went back to my seat and wondered at all I had dreamed. How nearly true would my dream turn out to be?

—Class Prophet.

We, the Senior Class of the State Normal School for Women at Farmville, Virginia, being of sound and disposing mind, do hereby solemnly declare, on this sixth day of June, 1922, Anno Domini, this to be our Last Will and Testament.

Item 1.—To Miss Munoz, our beloved honorary member, we leave our deepest appreciation for the interest she has manifested in the welfare of the Senior Class, and sincerest hopes for her future success and happiness.

Item 2.—To Miss Munoz, we also lovingly bequeath a crate of lemons that she may satisfy her taste for that particular fruit.

Item 3.—To Mr. Lear, we solemnly will a hair receiver.

Item 4.—To this august member of the faculty we also leave a machine for the correction of test papers so the future students of S. N. S. may get their September test papers back before June.

Item 5.—To the future senior class we do hereby bequeath our pleasant disposition, love for the training school, ability to write perfect lesson plans, and quiet dignity of manner.

Item 6.—To the faculty we sympathetically leave a pair of field glasses that they may observe more closely the movement of the girls in chapel.

Item 7.—We leave with all sincerity to Dr. Tidyman a box of candy to carry out the old saying "sweets to the sweet."

Item 8.—To Miss Tucker we respectfully bequeath an eraser for the purpose of aiding her in the daily task of cleaning marks of the desks—made by nervous girls while waiting for their questions.

Item 9.—To Miss London we will an alarm clock to arouse her from her absorption and enable her to dismiss the class on time.

Item 10.—To Miss Rice we leave a class that will "appreciate the situation."

Item 11.—To Mr. Fattig, in gratitude for his generosity to us this year, a bag of popcorn and an orange.

Item 12.—To our dear Miss Stubbs we leave an "Ideal Rural Community" wherein she may realize the answer to her "Rural Problem."

Item 13—To the Student Committee we very lovingly bequeath a pair of blinders that they may not observe anything meant for eyes other than theirs.

Item 14.—To our Alma Mater and Dr. Jarman we leave our love, loyalty and gratitude for two of the happiest years of our lives, and our heartiest wishes for the success of the future life of S. N. S.

In witness whereof, we hereby seal and sign this, the Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1922, at the State Normal School at Farmville, Virginia, this sixth day of June.

A True Narrative

TIME: 10:33

PLACE: The room to your left as you enter the auditorium from the street.
CHARACTERS: Judge, Jurors, Hydrophobia Jones.

JUDGE: Remove the manacles from the culprit and unlock her step. Hydrophobia, you have been reported as having been seen bathing in the fountain in a red bathing suit. Have you any relevant details to reveal?

HYDROPHOBIA: No, ma'am. I can't remember having bathed lately. (Knees begin to beat a gentle tattoo).

JUDGE: Where were you at midnight, February 30?

HYDRO.: I was shooing dogs out of the reception hall. (Knees strike up "I Ain't Nobody's Darling").

JUDGE: Hydrophobia, do not seek to have your sentence extenuated by pleading a not altogether accurate alibi. And even though you were assisting in the dispersal of canines at some time February 30, still that mitigates not a whit the inconvenience caused those who were roused from repose by the turbulence of your bathing suit. Can you prove that you were ridding the corridors of the pests previously mentioned at the time when your accuser states you were otherwise engaged?

HYDRO.: Yes, ma'am. (Knees change tune to "Goodbye Forever") I can show you the dogs.

JUDGE: Do not strive to be facetious. You will please retire while we discuss the demerits of the case.

An animated and learned discussion follows, but inasmuch as we are unable to spell the greater number of words therein used, we shall leave it to the imagination of the gentle (or brutal) reader to guess the conversation. Hydrophobia is recalled.

JUDGE: Hydrophobia, although ethically you have committed a heinous offence, yet the Committee is agreed that there are some extenuating circumstances connected with your escapade, and we have decided to let you off easily. By the way, here is a wad of cotton that inexperienced visitors sometimes find helpful. Your knees really have a very pretty tone, however, and we do not object to their music. You are sentenced to take a course in life-saving for two weeks. Before you leave, however, I should like to put one more question to you.

HYDRO. (eagerly, her face quite radiant with relief): Yes, ma'am!

JUDGE: May I be the first one to wear your bathing suit?

THE VIRGINIAN

Pi Kappa Omega

Though oft the road seems toilsome, hard, and long—
The weary road that leads toward the light—
To upward climb: to keep always in sight
The worthy goal; to ever sing a song
Of sweet content. In loving service strong;—
In lending help to take a rare delight.
To learn, to serve, to lead toward the right,—
To love of truth and hatred of all wrong.

To learn, to lead, to serve—behold these three
The great objective form. Full well to know
The joys of service, and, whate'er there be
To overcome, that maketh hard the way, to show
Unto the world (so all may clearly see)
That service doth from love and knowledge grow.

The Athletic Association

There are several words that are synonymous with Athletic Association; first and foremost is school spirit, for in no other way during the year has the Student Body shown such a high degree of this essential of a perfect school life than by its interest and support of Athletics. Then to explain school spirit in simpler words we have only to say "basket ball", "Varsity", "base ball", "Field Day", and the climax is reached with the simple but meaningful word "cup".

The work of the Athletic Association began this year with the organization of class basket ball teams. This phase of its work was soon ended, as it was necessary to play but two games, the Seniors winning both.

After this, the work of the Varsity began in earnest. A squad of fifteen were given "V's", and with the wonderful assistance of Dr. Frazier, the Athletic Association has developed a fast, fighting team with the true sporting spirit. This spirit was very clearly shown when we lost two games to the Fredericksburg "Champions". Two games were played with Harrisonburg—Farmville losing the first by two points and winning the second 24 to 19. As yet the results of the games with Radford are in doubt. The Varsity has had two fast practice games with teams from Lynchburg, winning both by a satisfactory score.

School letters will be awarded certain members of the Varsity Squad and an "F Club" will be formed with the expectancy of its becoming a most potent factor in our school.

Of course, we shall have our usual tennis tournament and baseball games.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL

Bulletin No. 13237

INSTRUCTIONS TO FRESHLADIES

REGISTERING—

Notify the college at least three (3) years previous to the date upon which you desire to enter. We can make no exceptions to this rule except to young ladies. (See special registering blank attached.)

COMPANIONS—

One cannot be too careful in the choice of one's roommates. One's college companions should be cheerful, agreeable and obliging. The best plan is to pick those whom you can boss.

WHAT TO BRING—

The following articles, while not absolutely essential, will be found very useful:—

4 gold-plated engraved door-knobs
2 typewriters (in case you are elected to the Annual staff)
1 juice harp
1 papers-hangers outfit, complete
1 four-inch hawser (in case of fire)
5 umbrellas (in case of fire)
1 wigwam (for Fair Day)
2 traffic cops (for reception hall)
1 case tiddlywinks
1 toothbrush with Evinrude motor attached
1 hydrographic chart of Siberia

ARRIVAL AT FARMVILLE—

Upon arrival at Farmville (the porter will announce it in Egyption) the best thing to do is to get off, otherwise you may get left. Look neither to right nor left (this would stamp you as totally ignorant of traveling) but step lightly into the school chariot. It may be recognized by the four milk-white steeds attached to it and wearing school colors.

AT THE SCHOOL—

Upon arrival at the Temple of Learning, where the chariot will doubtless carry you, get out and go in, sending your card, birth certificate and poll tax to the Registrar-in-Chief. Chat pleasantly with the officers of the school. Make them feel what a great honor you are about to bestow upon it by attending it. Do this courteously but firmly. Demand the best rooms with hall and bath attached. Don't forget to see if there is a bed in the room, also windows. If you are subject to insomnia, or walk in your sleep, have the windows taken out. Show that you are not purposing to be overrun or trifled with by at once ringing for a maid, hairdresser, chiffonier, manicurist and the Daily Paper, and ordering dinner in your suite. This is important as otherwise the authorities might think you were not accustomed to these things and other little comforts of college life, and neglect to furnish them.

On the second day, visit Farmville and pawn your wrist watch and trunk (no need of looking at your watch now since your time cannot be your own and the trunk won't be needed until June, anyway), with the proceeds buy several head of pink mule (this is important as you probably will not get any more until you get home).

RULES AND REGULATIONS—

The following rules and regulations will be strictly adhered to:—

1. Save the insides of rolls to stuff your pillows.

2. Be sure to bring your own private dog to breakfast.

3. Bring your trained lightning bugs to illuminate your room in case the current takes a snap holiday.

4. Students wearing ear-bumpers must see that both are of the same size and shape and are correctly located ferninst the cerebellum at an angle of ninety degrees. It is not fair to wear foot balls under them.

5. In the spring when the fall comes and the trees shed their branches, gather up the fragments to build a fire to keep your radiator warm.

6. Bring plenty of nice sharp knives. You may need them to cut campus.

7. Watch out for the GOVERNMENT. It is plural in number and singular in disposition.

8. Never refuse an invitation to go riding, especially on the school steed—the pink mule.

9. Orange or any other kind of crush not allowed on campus.

CARPE DIEM

Dance—sing—be gay, thou fool!
Knowest thou not that this drugged moment
Will soon be gone—and thou wilt pay
Then, thy gold to Death?
Snatch, now, thy time of petty joys;
Lift thou thy heavy feet and dance.
Dance I say! For soon 'tis gone!
The sage meditates on Life and on
Eternity. But remember thou
That of all Eternity thou hast
This one moment to shout and sing
The monk would tell in whispering words:
"Be pious and devout, thy reward will come
In time."
Reward? Take what thou canst,
Rewards are far away.
One moment only—Snatch thy joy.
Life is fleeting, and thou and I
Are dust.

The Big Four

Sing a song of Fourth Profess'nals-tickets full of "A's",
Four hard-worked Degree Girls studied to a daze;
When they get their sheepskins, they begin to cry
"We don't want to go away. My! My! My!"
Then one pulled out a writing book and "push-pulled" on the page,
And one drew forth a newspaper and wrote with air of sage,
And one said, "Where is Africa?" with voice serene and calm,
And one said, "That's just where I'll go to carry sinners balm."

Sing a song of graduates gone away for good,
Imposing knowledge on the young to gain their daily food;
Their pupils love them very much and chortle out their glee,
But pray just what are we to do in days that are to be?
We'll grieve so for our Annie that we'll never write again.
Why should we write? Our editor from it will reap no gain,
For she'll be gone, No one will teach Geography to us.
How sad we'll be, let's emigrate to Africa by bus.

Miss Culkin (to new arrival in kindergarten) "And isn't this a new face?" "No ma'am," stammered the little girl, "it ain't new. It's just been washed."

Sea-Shore Cabaret

Said a hungry duck to a flock of teals
"You dine on the meat that most appeals;
As for me I nabs
Some fiddler crabs;
For I gotta have music with my meals"—Exchange

Miss Whitescarver (to small kindergartner rolling spool in sand table) "What are you doing Wilmer?"
Wilmer—"Making tracks."
Miss W.—"What kind of tracks?"
Wilmer—"Con-tracks."

Jean—"The mice and rats in this room are perfectly terrible. We must remember to get some rat biscuits when we're down town."
Catherine—"Rat biscuits! The idea! If the rats can't eat what we do, they can leave."

Mr. Fattig—"What does 'contract' mean, Miss Bryant?"
Miss Bryant—"When you say your muscle contracts, you mean it expands."

Place your finger coquettishly on your cheek, smile, and repeat the abbreviation for "quart".

Point to your left temple with your left forefinger and repeat the abbreviation for "mountain".

We laugh at Mr. Lear's jokes
No matter what they be.
Not because they're funny jokes
But 'cause it's policee!

Science teacher: "What effect does the moon have on the tide?"
Student: "None, it affects the untied."

REMARKABLE REMARKS

Socrates: "Gosh, all hemlock!"
Noah: "Two of a kind!"
Jonah: "Hope everything comes out all right!"
Eve: "I'll bite!"
Cleopatra: "Stung again!"
Samson: "I guess that brought down the house!"
Rebecca: "Well, well!"
St. Vitus: "On with the dance!"

—Exchange.

She: "The only men I ever kiss are my brothers."
It: "What lodge do you belong to, anyway?"

—Exchange.

Mr. Fattig: "Miss Rogerson, is a rabbit an oviparous animal?"
Helen (slightly confused but not willing to admit it): "Yes, sir."
Lily: "Helen's thinking about Easter."

Christine (in English class): "Miss Scott, do you think that all poets are born?"
Miss Scott: "Yes, I certainly do."
